PLAYHOUSE FILLED TO CAPACITY FOR THE JUNIOR PLAY

"Square Crooks" Offers Many Thrills And Laughs.

R. BOSWORTH AND DORIS COLLINS STAR

Wins Place Well Toward Top of Season's Playhouse Productions.

"Square Crooks," by James P. Judge, one of the outstanding successes of the season, was produced by the Junior Class, Saturday evening in the College Playhouse. It is a very clever piece of modern American play-writing with the humorous and tragic worked smoothly together and filled with a surprising exposition of slang and fast repartee. The program describes it as a "mystery comedy" but, as a matter of fact, even though it is packed with comedy there is very little mystery about it.

The play was exceptionally well cast and the high quality and consistancy of the side acting and gestures showed signs of truly fine directing. Dr. W. S. Burrage should be highly commended for his work with the production.

Raymond Bosworth, as Eddie Ellison, did one of the best pieces of acting seen in Middlebury for a long time. Except for a slight letdown in one or two of the more emotional scenes his playing reached the smoothness of a professional. His voice, expression and gestures were all in perfect accord with the part and gave the feeling that Eddie Ellison himself was really on the stage. He was surprisingly consistent and held to his part throughout the entire production, a trait rarely found in an amateur. The part might have been created for Mr. Bosworth and it is doubtful if anyone else could have approached the excellency of his playing.

Doris Collins as Kay, Eddie's gay young wife, ran her husband a close race for high honors. She had all the air of inventing impromptu her wisecracks and drew a fine characterization of the quick-witted low-middle class girl. A tendency to recite her lines in the first act disappeared completely before the close of the play. Miss Collins successfully brought out

Undergrad Assn. Elects Treasurer and Secretary

Val J. Goltry '30 of Portland, Oregon, was elected treasurer and Roy E. Hardy '31, of Newport, secretary at the Undergraduate Association elections last night at McCullough Gymnasium. Because the ballots were not ready for the meeting, the Athletic Council members will not be elected until the next meeting of the Association.

Other business transacted was the installation of the newly elected officers, at which A. D. Leahy, the old vice president of the organization, spoke, in the absence of Carlton Simmons. Leahy welcomed the new officers and gave a farewell for the old. He also reviewed the activities of the body for the past year.

A report of the athletic consitution committee was presented. They propos ed several changes in the present constitution. The report was accepted and the changes will be posted in the library and at each of the fraternity houses so that the new constitution may be adopted at the next meeting.

WAUBANAKEE TAPS EIGHT AT JUNIOR WEEK CEREMONIES

Papooses Include Activity Heads and Sports Captains.

Eight men from the present junior class were tapped by the Waubanakee, senior honorary society, May 10, at Portor Field previous to the base-ball game with U. V. M. The new members include Folke Gruggel, D. Francis Howe, Stillman Kelly, Gilbert Smith, Carl Sorensen, Forrest Spooner, Christopher Webber, and Albert Willis.

Membership in Waubanakee is the highest honor the men's college can bestow for marked ability in extra-curricular activities and service to the college. It is made up of those men who have been outstanding members of their class throughout their college career, and is by far the most coveted honor in college. The society which is self-perpetuating, was established in 1911, and has made a great record in furthering activities and organizations at Middlebury since its inception. Each year, during Junior Week, the members who are to graduate in June select their successors. This year, the number of men tapped is unusually large, but in every instance, the nomination has been merited. The retiring members of the Waubanakee comprise Rollins A. Furbush, George R. Hinman, Charles Malam, Carleton Simmons and Harold B. Whittemore.

Mr. Gruggle has been very active in college affairs since coming to

GLEE CLUB CLOSES SUCCESSFUL SEASON WITH HOME CONCERT

Difficult Program Given; String Quartet and Solos Enjoyed.

The Glee Club presented its annual home concert at the Congregational church Thursday evening as the culminating event of the most successful season in its history. The Club has sung this year by radio and by concert to over five million people and responses to the radio concerts have been received from Colorado in the west and Kentucky in the south.

The program which the club presented was an excellent one, made up of music from the great choral and operatic composers. Such a program removes the Middlebury Club from the category of the average college organization of its kind and places it in the class of those clubs which appeal to genuine music lovers. The men in the club cannot work for months on the type of song which they presented without have their taste unconsciously improved and refined.

The chorus, in all of its numbers, gave evidences of intensive training but it did not appear that they always plumbed the depths of the music they were singing. One felt that they were not giving all that they might. Neither did their work demonstrate complete coordination with the conductor, but for the most part they sang with excellent rhythm and tone quality. The repetition of such a song as the chorus from Der Freishutz, when it is once well sung, is a questionable practice.

Mr. Waite sang his solos commendably. He has a lyric voice. Why then should he be premitted to sing songs which tax his inadequate dramatic powers? The string quartet did armirably with their difficult music. They demonstrated real ability to create a musical mood. Mr. Thomson played his solos with lovely tone and delicate feeling.

COLLEGE SCENE OF FUN DURING JUNIOR WEEK FESTIVITIES

Many Visitors Here To Join Students In Merriment.

Junior Week, with its rest and recreation, proved to be a great help to the students, to prepare them for the final spurt to examination time. All the activities were very successful and were enjoyed by everyone. The Sage show, as an unofficial preliminary was enjoyed very much. The Vermont baseball game, although not won, was close and provided much exitement, the same could be said of the Norwich game the next day.

After the baseball game on the opening day, many of the students and most of the faculty and their guests attended the Junior Tea at McCullough Gymnasium to be offici-

Vermont and Norwich Lead Blue in State Title Contests.

TEAM FAILS TO HIT IN PINCHES

Cook Loses Pitcher's Duel 3-1—Vermont Rallies To Win 7-6.

The baseball team was forced to bow in defeat for the first time this season when Vermont and Norwich took the annual Junior Week games. With four wins and no defeats, the situation looked bright when the Catamounts were taken on Thursday. Although the team hit well, the hits failed to come at the right time and when the smoke of battle had cleared, Vermont had won the game by the close score of 7 to 6. This is the second time in two years that the Green and Gold has conquered as the Blue by the margin of one run. Although the Norwich team came to Middlebury with the reputation of being hard hitters, they failed to live up to the reputation and were held to five hits by "Red" Cook. The game was close throughout, and although Coane's home run proved to be the winning margin, the Panther team had plenty of chances to move ahead, but again failed to hit in the pinches. The team now has a record of two wins and two losses in the Vermont State Championship series.

Four games will be played by the Middlebury team during the coming week. Coach Klevenow's men play Tufts today, Clark tomorrow, Rhode Island State Friday, and Springfield College Saturday. This trip finds the team facing the hardest opposition of the season. Tufts and Springfield always turn out good teams and this year is no exception. The Red and White team, of Springfield College, is much the same as last year and is made up of hard hitters and snappy fielders. The next games will come next week Thursday and Friday when Springfield College and Mass. Aggies will invade the home diamond.

Vermont 7; Middlebury 6.

After leading for five innings, the Middlebury nine was forced to accept defeat at the hands of the Catamounts from Burlington last Thursday by the score of 7 to 6. The Blue team was leading 4 to 2 going into the fatal 6th, but before the inning was over Vermont had pushed five runs over the plate and although Middlebury came back with two counters in her half of the inning and had men on bases in the seventh, eighth and ninth, no more scored, and once more Vermont went home with a baseball victory over the Panther.

The upstaters scored in the very first inning when Smith led off with a single, stole second, advanced to third while Conway was being thrown out at first, and came home on a single by Prentice. Prentice took second while Macomber was being thrown out by Franzoni and when Cogswell came through with a neat single, the Vermont first-baseman scored. Wood ended the inning by grounding out, Anderson to Collins.

Middlebury scored a single counter in the same inning when Anderson tripled, after Hasseltine had flied to center, and when Collins laid down a bunt, Andy scored. Some more cheer came in the second frame when Franzoni led off with a single and took third on a double by Humeston. Humeston's hit cleared the left field fence, but as ground rules were in force, the clout was limited to two bases. Sorenson flied out to Prentice, but Willis singled to score both Franzoni and Humeston. Willis went out stealing, Aronson to Smith and Whittemore grounded to Smith to end the inning.

GOOD MEM BOOK MATERIAL.

We feel like singing a once familiar song with new words—"Junior Week is over, and we are going to study." Three weeks in which to do a semester's work? We hope not, and yet, we feel just a little envy for those who spent their Junior Week studying. Some of us will be making up work Senior Week.

Middlebury students are fortunate in having three days of real vacation for Junior Week instead of a week's festivities and no vacation as is the case our "brothers on the lake." The Juniors at Vermont are however given Saturday free which ought to be very acceptable after such a week.

Junior Week, it seems to us, was successful in every sense of the word. The weather, an important and uncontrollable item cooperated with the committee in making the weekend one of the most enjoyable in a long time. Those in charge of the program apparently had every detail worked out beforehand so that everything went off smoothly as scheduled.

The Glee Club concert made us realize again why the organization has little trouble in securing return engagements on its tours from year to year. The Prom, the event of the week elicited favorable comment from all who attended. The play was one of the best seen in Middlebury this year, and the track meet compensated in part for the loss of two baseball games.

If the class of 1930 does as well as the class of 1929, those students who go home and those who study next Junior Week will surely be out of luck while those who entertain will have no cause to apologize.

FRANKNESS.

Probably the two types of people which the college student most keenly dislikes are the hypocrites and the snobs. No one is exactly sure where the boundary line of snobbery lies, but if a person gives evidence of hi-hat inclinations, he will find himself speedily labelled "snob." Being hi-hat consists for the most part in giving a chilly greeting to a fellow student. More than the hi-hat individual we loathe the hypocrite, he who somehow makes his associates feel that he is not entirely sincere, that he is keeping something concealed within himself which he might or might not share with another group at a later hour. And in our hurry and bustle to condemn him, we make a stir to lengthily express our own little code, and ideas, if we have any. Perhaps we are afraid that if we do not make our viewpoints of certain situations very lucid, we, too, will seem to have joined the band of pretenders.

This extreme frankness is not at all necessary; in fact, it becomes decidedly boring after a while. There is no disgrace in keeping things to one's self, nor need we feel that we are depriving our friends of something which they have deserved, if we do not give them the many shades and waverings of our attitudes. The beauty of confidence is in that feeling of comradeship which needs no verbose explanation. If we kept our half formed fancies and whims to ourselves and were willing to wait until we had developed something of genuine worth, meriting general distribution, we would be a deal happier. In our eagerness to become and to do, let us have trust in ourselves and in our friends, and be frank when the time comes which finds us possessed of matters fitting discussion. Meanwhile, all the more credit to those few so-called hypocrites who have the wisdom to keep their castles in Spain.

We don't know much about Italian politics but we judge that Mussolini may be slipping a little. We noticed in the papers the other day that he has been writing some poetry.

LITERARY NOTES

"SPRING PLOWING"

By c. f. m.

We approach "Spring Plowing" with a sense of intimacy that may make us unduly critical if we are so inclined or sentimentally sympathetic if our tendencies are in that direction. But after reading through the pages of real poetry, a reasoned conclusion is, in the end, the same. We like the book not because we know the poet, but because it contains poetry that is appealing and sincere.

There are certain things definitely absent from Malam's first book, and one of these is sentimentality. Restraint characterizes the poems, which is not to say that there is a lack of emotion in them. "Gorse's Daughter" is an admirable illustration of feelings subtly but forcefully carried over to the reader. All Mr. Malam says of the real tragedy is:

"I saw just the crumpled bank
And the hound that stopped to paw it,
And the bonnet, wet and dank—
I saw Gorse, and saw he saw it. . . ."

but that is enough; we can see the pathos in Old Gorse's face.

Noticeably absent from the poems, also, is the blatancy that once characterized new, or radical, poetry—a sensational use of free verse and an imagistic tendency to present a picture only. Free verse never replaces poetry in Malam's volume; when present at all, it is fully as poetical, in technique and in meaning, as the sonnets, the blank verse, or any of the more conventional forms. Malam is not trying to startle anyone into noticing his poems; the originality of them exists for no such purpose, but comes from the poems themselves and from the spirit of the poet. Nor is he content to give us a scrapbook of pictures that he, and perhaps we, have seen. We find lovely and familiar pictures in the book—"Lake Pleiad" and "Evening over Vermont Hills" for example—but Malam is not afraid to let his pictures release a thought, a meaning that comes to us, quietly welcome, as we read and think and feel.

Continuing our rather negative criticism, we might say that prettiness is absent, too; the poems are freighted with loveliness and real beauty, but never is this a superficial matter, a mere prettiness of figure or of phrase; rather it is a harmony of thought, emotion and imaginative embodiment with music of rhythm and syllable.

Still another absence to be noted is sameness of message or of form. From a technical standpoint, the poems are remarkably varied, with rhythms that are organic, consistent with mood, and diction that is never cliche but vivid and freshly realized. And the moods themselves vary from reverence to the taste of "Bitter Fruit" and back to the quiet sincerity of aspiration in "Wild Geese Fly By" which seems to express the intent and achievement of the poet as much as any one poem could do:

"Thus would I pass, that men where I went by
Would have their silence touched, yet, scarcely broken,
By a faint sound, and turning to the sky
From whence it came, by sight know I had spoken,
And say in their own tongues what they were knowing
Because they read a symbol in my going." A. F. '28

Copies of Mr. Malam's book may be secured directly from him at the Delta Upsilon House. In cloth binding it is $2.50.

A special edition of "Spring Plowing" is printed on white wove paper and bound in decorated paper boards. It is limited to 100 copies, and illustrated by J. J. Lankes' wood cuts. Mr. Lankes has done a special signed wood cut, pulled on Japan vellum paper, which will be inserted separately in the book. The price per copy is $5.10 including postage.

In the colleges a widespread movement is under way to reorganize the curriculum. Undergraduates in the first two years who have shown no enthusiasm for the prescribed courses will now be permitted to neglect courses of their own selection.—New York Times.

SAGE SHOW FULL OF WISE CRACKS

The annual Sage Show, in the Opera House Wednesday evening was very amusing and fairly clever. The erudite pledges managed to burlesque both the faculty and student body without descending to the crudeness usually only too obvious.

The act given was made up by the Sage Pledges themselves and contained wisecracks of a high and fast order. Theodore Zaremba, as Dean Wiley, and Dick Humeston as Dean Ross, were presiding over a meeting of the board of admissions. The lesser lights among the faculty were sitting around in a semicircle, like the knights of the Round Table, and like the same gentlemen; their chairs were plainly marked to designate the occupant. These names in most cases were quite unnecessary.

Freshmen Defeat Sophs In Annual Rope Pull

At ten o'clock Saturday morning twenty freshmen and twenty sophomores lined up for their annual rope pull. The freshmen were eager to win for by winning this event the number of games won in the inter-class rivalry would be even and they would have one more chance to defeat the sophs and thus win their freedom.

The hose line was brought forward, the water turned on and aimed between the opposing forces, and the gun was fired. The frosh got the jump and soon had the first soph near the water line. The sophs were able to hold the freshmen for a short time, but was unable to gain any of their lost ground. Soon the frosh started gaining again and from then on the outcome was certain. Inch by inch the sophs were pulled through the stream of water until the last one was dragged across meaning victory for the class of 1931. A large crowd of spectators was there to see the fun and many laughs were had at the expense of the sophomores, who were "all wet."

COLLEGE SCENE OF FUN JUNIOR WEEK

ally welcomed to the week of merry-making. Fenderson's Fun Makers added much to the pleasure of dancing during the Tea.

In the Evening at the Congregational Church, the Glee Club entertained a large audience. It was their only home concert, and its high quality was received very well by all who attended. James Thomson's violin selections were especially applauded. The house also showed much appreciation of the numbers by the string quartette.

The fraternity stunts at the Opera House Friday morning were the best in years. The packed house was in laughter during the whole of the performance. That evening at the Middlebury Inn, the greatest social event of the year, the Junior Prom, was attended by a mirthful crowd. The dancers considered Charlie Henderson and his jazz experts the best group of harmonizers that have played at Middlebury for some time. Although "Home Sweet Home" was not played until 2 A. M., the couples did not welcome it.

At the Rope Pull Staurday morning the Frosh convinced the Sophomores that they were all wet. In the afternoon our thinly clad spiked warriors scored an overwhelming victory over R. P. I. But not satisfied with that, they broke two college records, to make the event historic. "Square Crooks" played to a large audience that evening at the Playhouse and those who saw it left their seats at the final curtain, knowing they had seen the best production ever staged at Middlebury.

The fraternity sing after the play and the Sorority sing Sunday evening were a fitting close for the week of frolic.

The committees in charge of arrangements for Junior Week were: Stillman F. Kelley, 2nd Chairman, Dorothy L. Dietz, Vice Chairman, Richard A. Lobban Treasurer.

Junior Promenade, Chauncey A. Niles Chairman, Folke Gruggel, Albert E. Willis, Corwin L. Happ, Emeline Amidon, Elizabeth W. Cady, Kathleen I. Brittell.

RECORDS FALL AS BLUE TRACK TEAM WHIPS ENGINEERS

Win Over R. P. I. Makes Panther Favorite For State Title.

SQUAD ENTERS N. E. MEET SATURDAY

Bagley and Williams Set Records in High Jump and Pole Vault.

To wind up the Junior Week athletic program in fitting fashion the Panther tracksters took R. P. I. into camp last Saturday on Porter Field to the tune of 81-54. Captain Arnold brought in Middlebury's first victory, in the mile, the first event to be run off. Taking heart at Charley's fine win, the rest of the team got down to business and when the smoke cleared, Middlebury had nine first places, ten seconds, and six thirds, for a total of 81 points. Williams soared to a new college record in the pole vault when he cleared the bar at 10 feet 11-16 inches. Bagley, by taking second place in the high jump, set a new record of 5 feet 10 1-4 inches. Robbins, of R. P. I., who won the high jump, leaped 5 feet 11 1-4 inches, which set a new R. P. I record in that event.

The weather was extremely cold and the track slow, so that fast time in the races was next to impossible. Arnold easily won the mile run with Thompson and Clark of R. P. I. taking second and third. Loose, the R. P. I. captain, won the quarter with Burrows and Sanzo of Middlebury taking second and third. Goltry, who has been Middlebury's mainstay in the quarter, was unable to run because of an infected leg. Loose's time was 53.4 seconds which was good considering the conditions. Gil Smith took his usual first places in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Smith did the 100 in 10.1 seconds and the 220 in 22.4 seconds.

Bill Donald took first place in the half mile, which was the most exciting race of the day. From the very first, Bill took the lead, but Thayer stepped to the fore at the end of the first lap and Donald dropped back to third as Leiberum, of R. P. I. sprinted by him. Rounding the last turn, it looked like a battle between Thayer and Lieberum for first place, but Bill came through with a fast sprinting finish and passed both Leiberum and Thayer to take first place. Thayer and Leiberum finished in nearly a dead heat, but the judges awarded second place to Thayer.

For the second time this season, in many meets, Guarnaccia came away with high scoring honors. Sammy took first place in the shot put, first in the discus throw, and second in the broad jump, for a total of thirteen points. In the discus throw, Guarnaccia's heave of 123 feet 8 inches was only 2 3-4 inches under the college record. Smith, with first places in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and Robbins, of R. P. I., with first places in the high and broad jumps, scored ten points apiece.

In the track events, Middlebury showed a decided edge and scored five first places, six seconds, and three thirds, for a total of 46 points, as compared with R. P. I.'s three firsts, two seconds, and five thirds, for a total of 26 points. In the field events, the results were not tinged with Blue quite so decidedly, but again Middlebury was supreme. Coach Brown's men took four firsts, four seconds, and three thirds, for a total of 35 points, while the engineers could only get three firsts, three seconds, and four thirds, for a total of 28 points.

This Saturday Coach Brown is going to take some of the men down to Boston for the New England Intercollegiate track meet. The team has shown well balanced strength all season and is bound to show up well in future meets. The New England's bring out the cream of the college track men of this section and in order to win an event real class must be shown. Middlebury has in Gil Smith an exceptional dash man and is strong in all of the running events. The field work is not of as high a class, but with Guarnaccia, Schmidt and DuBois going their best, Middlebury can make them all step. By overwhelming St. Lawrence and R. P. I., the Panther squad showed its worth and the outlook for another championship track team is extremely bright. The summary of last Saturday's meet:

GIRLS BASEBALL SEASON UNDER WAY

The 1928 baseball season for wemen opened May 9 when the sophomores met and defeated the seniors. Since that date two other games have been played, one between the juniors and the freshmen and the sophomores. The results of the first contest was 15-8 in favor of the sophomores. The latter team has still to finish the game with the juniors. The score as it stands now is 20-15 in favor of the juniors. In the freshmen vs. juniors game the final score was 15-14 for the yearling team. These two teams are close rivals as the score of their first game indicates.

It has been decided by the athletic council that those women who have already won their maximum number of points for the year shall not be elegible to play on the baseball teams for their respective classes. This will make it possible for a greater number of women to obtain their numerals.

RACQUETMEN TAKE TWO AND LOSE ONE IN JR. WEEK TILTS

Norwich Conquered By 5-1, St. Michael's 5-0; B. U. Wins.

PANTHER LEADS IN STATE TITLE RACE

Blue Meets U. V. M. Today and St. Stephen's Tomorrow.

The college tennis tem won two of its three matches held during Junior Week, defeating St. Michael's and Norwich by big scores, and losing to Boston University 6 to 0 in a series of fast and interesting contests.

Thursday the team met St. Michael's and overwhelmed their squad to the tune of 5 to 0. The Middlebury players were in great form, and at no time had any trouble with their opponents. Capt. Hindes and Don Henderson starred for the Blue and White, winning easily in both the singles and the doubles. The effects of a week's good weather and the resultant practice by the squad showed itself in the convincing manner with which the men took their matches.

Showing a let-down in their form, the Blue and white team lost to Boston University May 11, by a 6 to 0 score. Led by Martin, their hard hitting captain, the visitors experienced little difficulty in sweeping the match. Hindes, in the singles, and Smith and Young in the doubles were the best players for Middlebury.

The following day, the team defeated Norwich 5-1, which is as large a score as any ever made against the Cadets in recent years. The match was very one-sided and offered the Blue little more than a good work-out. The second team could have been used to good advantage in this match, as it was evident the Cadets were out of their class against the varsity. Hindes and Henderson did the best work for Middlebury.

Summary:

Middlebury 5; St. Michael's 0.

Hindes (M) defeated Broder (St. M) 6-4, 6-4; Young (M) defeated Caron (St. M) 6-1, 6-3; Henderson (M) defeated Daley (St. M) 6-3, 6-1; Hindes and Henderson (M) defeated Broder and Daley (St. M) 6-3, 4-6, 6-3; Smith and Young (M) defeated Caron and Roberts (St. M) 7-5, 6-1.

Boston University 6; Middlebury 0.

Martin (B.U.) defeated Hindes (M) 6-2, 6-3; Ryecroft (B.U.) defeated Henderson (M) 6-2, 6-2; Andrews (B. U.) defeated Young (M) 6-0, 6-4; N. Smith (B.U.) defeated F. Smith (M) 6-3, 6-2; Martin and Andrews (B.U.) defeated Hindes and Henderson (M) 6-1, 6-2; Carter and Hudson (B.U.) defeated F. Smith and Young (M) 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Middlebury 5; Norwich 1.

Hindes (M) defeated Ellis (N) 6-1, 6-4; Henderson (M) defeated Grandey (N) 6-1, 6-4; Young (M) defeated Plumley (N) 6-1, 6-1; Smith (M) defeated Caldiwood (N) 10-8, 7-9, 6-4; Hindes and Henderson (M) defeated Ellis and Grandey (N) 6-0, 6-3; Plumley and Caldiwood (N) defeated Smith and Young (M) 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The team will face its big rival today when the Panther will undertake to claw U. V. M. at Burlington. As Middlebury now leads in the tourney for the State championship, by reason of successive defeats of St. Michael's and Norwich, the match will be of more than ordinary interest. Vermont can be expected to put up a great fight and the team will need every bit of power to win. St. Stephen's, which will be met on the Middlebury courts Thursday, May 17, will provide some good opposition, as their team has been going well this year. However, the Blue varsity withmore experience and practice, should do well against the New Yorkers.

The team will enter the New England Inter-collegiate lawn tennis tournament next week on the Longwood courts in Boston.

PANTHER NINE SUFFERS DEFEATS

With the score reading 3 to 2 in favor of Middlebury, things looked cheerful and when another run came over the plate in the fifth, things looked rosy. Sorenson led off with a pretty double and went to third on a sacrifice by Willis. When Price bobbled Whittemore's bingle, Sorenson scored and Hal took possession of the midway station, but remained there as Hasseltine grounded out and Anderson fanned.

Then came the bombardment and when the smoke cleared Vermont instead of being on the short end of a 4 to 2 score was leading 7 to 4 and the Blue supporters weren't quite so cheerful. Macomber led off the inning with a double and went to third on Cogswell's single. Cogswell stole second and with none out things looked dark. Wood struck out, but Whittemore gave Dinniman a free ticket to first and the bases were loaded. Aronson sent a roller down the first base line and Macomber was forced at home which made two outs and the sky seemed a bit brighter. The joy was cut short when Moriarty singled and Cogswell and Dinniman scored. A tie score did not look so good, but it was to look even worse as Smith strolled to fill the bases once more and then Conway laced out a triple to score Aronson, Moriarty and Smith. Prentice ended the agony by striking out.

Middlebury came right back in the last half of the inning and for a few minutes it looked as though the game could yet be snatched from the fire. Collins got a life on an error by Moriarty and after March had fanned scored when Franzoni doubled. Franzoni scored on a single by Humeston. Sorenson forced Humeston, stole second and took third when Willis got a single. With the tying run on third and the winning run on first, Whittemore struck out to end the inning.

Vermont was harmless for the rest of the game, but the damage had been done and try as hard as they could, the boys could not push over the tying run. Hasseltine led off the seventh with a single, but was stranded when the next three men went out in order. Humeston got on through an error by Smith and when Sorenson singled things brightened up a little bit. Willis put the damper on the whole business however, by hitting into a double play, Conway to Smith to Prentice. Hasseltine again got a single in the ninth and stole second. Anderson and Kelley, who was batting for Collins, ended matters however, by striking out.

Middlebury outhit the Catamounts and had a larger percentage of extra base hits, but the hits were not put together to make scores. Whittemore fanned six men, but was a bit wild and walked five of the upstaters. Franzoni's unassisted double play in the third inning got Hal out of a bit of trouble and he went well with the exception of the sixth inning, but that inning was enough for the Vermonters to score the five runs to win. After relieving Talcott in the fifth inning, Moriarty pitched good ball, fanning five and keeping the Blue hits well scattered. The score:

DEKES DEFEAT D. U. IN FIRST BALL GAME

Interfraternity Baseball Begins; D. K. E. Shows Power.

The Dekes overwhelmed the D. U. ball team to the tune of 17 to 4, in a rough and tumble game played Monday at the athletic field. Pete Crawford pitched great ball, holding the D. U. players to but six hits and four runs in seven innings of play. Both teams committed many errors, and seemed to enjoy doing so. The Dekes made fewer errors and touched Ken Maynard for a total of 21 hits which is enough for any team. Crawford kept his opponents well under control with his fast shoots, and whenever somebody managed to connect, his support in the field held down the score. Paul and Crocker, D. U., played the best ball for their team, while Crawford and Furbush starrred for the winners, Crawford striking out 16 D. U. men.

Norwich 3; Middlebury 1.

Friday, on Porter Field, the baseball team again met defeat when they failed to hit behind the masterful hurling of Cook, and went down before Norwich 3 to 1. The game was featured by the tight pitching of both Waining and Cook, but circumstances were against "Red" and the "Horsemen" romped on to victory.

The first two innings were uneventful, but Norwich opened up in the third and combining an error, a stolen base, and a single, scored one run. Canon opened the inning by striking out. Waining arrived safely at the initial bag when Cook mussed up his roller down the first base line. Kane forced Waining, Franzoni to Sorenson. Having pilfered second base, Kane scored when Sherman singled. The latter went to second while an attempt was being made to nip Kane at the plate. Coane ended the inning by grounding out to Sorenson.

Middlebury went out in order in her half of the inning, but the fourth produced the fireworks and gave the Blue cheering section something to cheer about. Franzoni sent up a foul fly to Cusson to start off the inning. Then up strode mighty "Casey" to the plate, only in this case his name was Humeston. Dick caught hold of one of Waining's hoppers and it landed far out past the center fielder and rolled to the fence in deep center. Humeston made his circuit of the bases to the accompaniment of the Middlebury cheering section gone wild. It was a terrific clout and Humeston was over the plate before the ball even got back to the infield. The boys then went from the sublime to the ridiculous, when Sorenson and Willis struck out.

With the score tied at one apiece and the pitchers going great, there was little excitement. Norwich got a man on in the sixth when Cusson singled, but he died on the bases as the rest went out. An error by Collins in the seventh enabled another cadet to see first base, but he too was stranded. Cook opened Middlebury's fifth inning by striking out, but Hasseltine singled and went to third on a double by Anderson. Both men were stranded, however, as Collins and March whiffed the ozone in vain. Cook again led off in the seventh and

From 1918 to 1919 he was associate professor of French at Johns Hopkins University and later was coned with the French Departments of the College of the City of Detroit and Cornell University. He is the author of several works, the most widely known of which is "Je Sais Mes Verbes."

SUMMER COURSES FOR FOREIGN STUDENTS

The University of Gottingen offers to Americans summer courses from July 9 to August 5. These courses are given by university professors and are intended for:

1. Students who desire to deepen and broaden their knowledge of the German language and of German culture.

2. Students of mathematics and physics (and related subjects) who desire a general survey of present-day tendencies in mathematical and physical research.

The German Institute for Foreigners (Das Deutsche Institut fur Auslander) at the University of Berlin offers to Americans summer school courses organized on the American plan, from July 12 to August 22. These courses include German language and literature, German political and social history, German art and German civilization, political economy and sociology. The courses are arranged for four classes of students:

1. Undergraduates who are preparing at college for their A. B.

2. Graduate students who are working for their M. A. or Ph. D.

3. Teachers who desire to continue their professional studies.

4. Special students who wish to take merely cultural courses.

The courses will be conducted by university professors, directors and teachers in secondary schools. In addition to the regular classes, lectures, discussions and observations, there will be excursions and social gatherings. Saturdays are free for excursions; the language courses will meet daily on the other five days from 9 to 11 A. M.; the other courses from 4 to 6 P. M.

The courses offered are planned to meet the requirements of American educational institutions, and many of these institutions have already signified their willingness to give credit to students and teachers who pursue these courses at the summer school of the University of Berlin. Candidates who desire such credit are advised to make arrangements with their accrediting authorities before sending in the applications. Teachers who desire credit should make similar arrangements with their authorities.

Inquiries and requests for application blanks should be addressed to Archie M. Palmer, Executive Director American German Student Exchange, 2 West 45th Street, New York City. Each application should be accompanied by a deposit of five dollars. This will be credited toward the total tuition fee payable in Berlin upon arrival and is not returnable in case of failure to attend the courses. No student will be registered for a course until the tuition fee is paid.

WAMBA SAYS

Now that Dick Gould has been taken for a merry chase, who's next?

There are two seasons in Middlebury, windy and cold, and they both come at the same time. Sometimes there is unusual weather, like we had for two days last week.

He heard that the D. U.'s will petition the college for a high wire fence in front of their house, if Dick Humeston keeps playing baseball like he did last week.

The hockey managers slipped up when they did not schedule a game for Junior Week.

The Professor was quite right when he said to a student, "I am using you as a concrete example."

The benches on the lower campus have not as yet taken their seasonal stroll to secluded spots.

Step ladders should be provided for the occupants of the last few rows of seats at the Playhouse.

Now that the Prom is over, it would not be a bad plan for the co-eds to adopt the Williamette College leap year idea ,if they want any dates before Commencement. They could prove that there is really something to the statement, "The woman pays."

The Sophomores colud not deny that they were all wet after the Rope Pull last Saturday.

Brook Trout Planted in Battell Forest Streams

Under the direction of Forest Manager J. J. Fritz, the annual stocking of the streams in the 31,000 acre Battell forest was begun when 9000 brook trout fry were liberated in the streams in the forest. Later in the season increased numbers of fish will be planted in various brooks in the preserve.

Included in the forest and park are approximately 55 miles of brook and river suitable for fishing purposes and these are stocked by the state and college authorities who co-operate to preserve the fishing in this section of the state.

For several years past there has been a total of approximately 25,000 trout liberated each year in the brooks in this area. Approximately 5,000 advanced fingerlings are each year planted in September or October.

The fish which have been planted this season were placed in a two mile stretch of the south branch of Middlebury river, Brandy brook and Lake Pleiad. These streams are posted and are not open to public fishing except by special permit, issued by the college authorities. These are obtainable from D. Dunham, town clerk of Hancock and from Mrs. E. F. Powell at the Bread Loaf farm in Ripton.

Don't Stay Too Long To Say Good Night

"Ohio State University has ruled that men may not linger in front halls to say goodnight. The Dean says that the men should not ruin their health by keeping late hours."

"Go, my boy friend, you must go
Nor linger here much longer,
You must obtain your beauty sleep
If you would get much stronger."

"Ah, me, my lass, I fear 'tis so,
Alas my knees grow weaker;
It is eleven by the clock,
My downy cot—I'll seek her."

"Go, go, my man, no longer stay,
You've one foot in the grave now
For you've been here full minutes ten
Bad health from thee I state now."

"I'm growing weaker all the time,"
The youth's physic is fleeting
'Twill kill me if I stay I'm sure,
Let's end at once this meeting."

So stay not in the old front hall
For thirty minutes passes,
For you will ruin your best health
Though I don't know the causes.

Perhaps one's health is ruined by
A swat on the proboscis,
Or maybe standing in the hall
Produces hall-itosis.

EX-PRES. THOMAS TALKS AT VESPERS

"Liberty of Youth Offers Chance to Obtain Power."

Ex-President John M. Thomas, now of Rutgers College, gave the address at vespers Sunday. He chose as his text the parable of the Prodigal son. "A certain man had two sons: and the younger of them said to his father, 'Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me.' And he divided unto them his living."

President Thomas said: "In the case of the prodigal son, what should the father have done when his son spoke in this manner? Was the father weak to grant his son's request? Certainly not, for many people never find themselves until they are on their own and get away from home. It was simply the youth's love for independence that caused his demand.

"Many young people are discontented when under restrain and supervision; it is only the response to the natural instincts of childhood, the receptive period. In this age it has become the task of the child to adapt himself to varying circumstances. It is the duty of manhood to create, produce and change. What is the child's virtue is the man's vice.

"The transition age, nevertheless, is a slow and difficult process, both physically and mentally. The normal boy is continually trying to get away from conformity. Such a desire is natural and productive of good results for freedom is essential to the growth of the youth. However, do not make the mistake of thinking that freedom is simply choice. It involves much more: freedom is also power.

"The only way in which the world will be improved is through the accomplishments of better men and women. Win first your freedom of body that you may be able to confront the struggle in life. Win secondly freedom of will and spirit, for, as in the past we have been masters of ourselves, so may we in the future, through the strength of these added talents, be successful."

PLAYHOUSE FILLED FOR JUNIOR PLAY

all the underlying tenderness for her husband which the roughness of her part tended to obscure.

Raymond Saulnier, playing the part of Larry Scott, Eddie's past partner in crime and present partner in virtue, played a very difficult part in a commendable manner. To play a hesitating, uncertain role without giving the impression of having forgotten ones lines is a very hard job. Mr. Saulnier did this perfectly. His love scenes with Jane were well done and especially amusing.

Jane was played satisfactorily by Margaret Lackie who gave the role the quiet characterization and fine shading it required.

Elizabeth McDermott, the landlady, and Sam Pattee her policeman lover, both gave fine performances. Miss McDermott seemed to be giving too much attention to her brogue at the expense of her inflection and once Mr. Pattee became too excited and forgot his brogue entirely. But, as a whole, neither player overdid or under did the part and both played their roles excellently.

William Gazdagh, a new comer to the Playhouse stage, did remarkably well as the thorough-going, ruthless bandit and killer. His characterization of the cornered desperado was exceptionally good.

Freddie Lynch succeeded, nearly immediately, in creating an intense dislike for the mean pussyfooted police detective which he portrayed. His handling of the necklace just before he fished it out of Eddie's pocket was well done. At the end when the detective was finally caught at his game, he looked as baffled and chagrined as could be desired.

As, Sorrow the maid, Eloise White somewhat reminiscent of Hattie in the "First Year" was not at all overdone and showed considerable individuality. Dorothy Dietz and Charles Allen were admirably suited to their small roles.

The set was not architectuarlly cor-

JUNIOR TEA PART OF WEEK'S SUCCESS

The Junior class gave a tea dance as a reception to the faculty and students in the McCullough Gymnasium Friday afternoon.

The class officers, Arthur T. Brush, Catherine E. Hodges, Ruth E. Spaulding, D. Francis Howe and the Junior Week Chairman, Saillman F. Kelley and vice-chairman, Dorothy L. Dietz received. Tea was served to nearly one hundred people, following which there was dancing. Music was furnished by the Black Panther Serenaders.

singled to right. He took second on a passed ball and after Hasseltine had fanned, Anderson drew a base on balls. Collins and March again failed and the men were left on base.

Sherman drew a base on balls to open Norwich's half of the eighth inning and then Coane, "the hitting fool" from over the hills, landed on one of Cook's pitches and poked it out into deep right center field for a home run, Sherman scoring ahead of him. Coane's hit was well placed and rolled nearly to the ticket office.

As in the Vermont game, one inning decided the whole business and although the Middlebury team hit just as well and got a larger percentage of extra base hits they did not come together and consequently were wasted. With men on bases, the boys seemed weak with the bat and passed up many chances to score.

Cook turned in a well pitched game and deserved to win, but luck was against him and the home run by Coane came just at the wrong time. "Red" struck out eleven "Horsemen" and walked two. Waining also pitched masterly ball and equalled Cook in strike-outs and walked only one. The Norwich twirler was a bit wild however, and made three wild pitches and hit three men. With men on bases though, Waining tightened up and was invincible.

Of course Humeston's home run was a feature and was the first legitimate four base hit of the year. Coane's hit was the feature of the Norwich attack and did the only real damage of the whole game. March tried for a hit, but could not reach it. The score:

JUNIOR PROMENADE HAS LARGE CROWD

Charlie Henderson and His Orchestra Well Received.

The annual Junior Prom held Friday evening at the Middlebury Inn was the climax of a most successful week-end. Approximately one hundred and ten couples, the largest crowd in the history of Middlebury to attend a Junior Prom, whiled away the all too fast fleeting hours from nine till two, to the accompaniment of Charlie Henderson's orchestra. The committee were exceptionally fortunate in securing Henderson's services as he has undoubtedly one of the finest orchestras in the East. Henderson gave several clever specialties, including an immitation of a piano playing at a cheap movie.

The patrons and patronesses were: President and Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Dean and Mrs. E. J. Wiley, Dean Eleanor S. Ross, Dean Burt A. Hazeltine, Mrs. Maud O. Mason and Miss Mary Rosevear.

The committee included: Chauncey A. Niles, chairman, Folke Gruggel, Corwin W. Happ, Albert E. Willis, Emeline Amidon, Elizabeth W. Cady and Kathleen I. Brettell.

rect in a few minor details but was cleverly designed and effectively executed. The lightning, as managed by Grosvenor Crooks, slipped up in the first act when the raising of window shade failed to bring an increase in the illumination. In the third act during the dark scenes there was just the right amount of light so that the audience could see what was happening and still have the illusion of darkness. The small number of special costumes needed for the production were very well selected. Mr. Gazdagh's, Miss McDermott's and Miss White's make-up were realistically done. The Playhouse orchestra, under the direction of Arthur Yeaw '28, gave some fine selections between the acts.

STUNTS TROPHY IS AWARDED TO D. K. E.

Delta Kappa Epsilon received the cup for the best skit put on Friday morning, in the Opera House at the Annual Inter-fraternity Stunt Contest. President Moody, in awarding the prize, Staurday evening at the Junior Play, stated that high quality of the stunts put on this year gave the committee a very difficult task in deciding the winner.

Sigma Phi Epsilon opened with a mock trail in which the worst offenders were let off with no penalty and where sentence was passed only on those accused of trifling misdemeanors.

Delta Upsilon as the Salisbury Spree Club gave a concert. A quartette, whose singing resembled four cats flirting with one another, recommended Lucy Strikes, Listerine and several other well known nationally advertised commodities.

The neutrals were next with a skit entitled "When We Were Young" It represented a village school in which members of the faculty were students, Professor Bergman threw scraps of information to the students and requested that they be returned without alteration at the next examination.

Delta Kappa Epsilon, with their prize winning stunt "Behind the Scenes in a Radio Broadcasting Room" put on a very clever piece of work. Charles Honsberger as the health talker, and the realistic trip around the campus were the two outstanding parts of the act.

Chi Psi dedicated their new lodge, while concocting take-offs of the Gettisburg Address and other famous bits of rhetoric.

Kappa Delta Rho in "The Power of Speech" gave a silent but moving melodrama in which a beautiful lady murders several wicked men because her boy-friend has been shot.

Alpha Sigma Phi as "The Nautical Serenaders (all wet)" gave some really good music. Palmer representing O'Mally recited a rather funny speech in Jewish dialect about a "Vedding" he had been to see.

Betta Kappa showed the inside dope on how the Beldens district school was run. Sam Patte made an effective "school marm"

INTERSORITY SING CLOSES JUNIOR WEEK

The intersorority stepsinging at Pearsons Hall Sunday evening brought the Junior Week activities to a close. Each sorority in turn sang two songs as is the custom. The titles of the songs and the respective order of the sororities was as follows: Alpha Xi Delta, "Evening Song" and "That's an Alpha Xi"; Phi Mu, "Hymn of Loyalty" and "To Beta Lambda"; Delta Delta Delta, "Under the Moon," and "Tri Delta Garden"; Kappa Kappa Gamma, "Here's to Kappa Gamma's Blue and Blue" "Kappa, All Hail to Thee" and the Kappa Call; Sigma Kappa, "Rip Van Winkle" and "Tribute to Sigma"; and Pi Beta Phi, "Pi Beta Phi Anthem" and "A Tree in the Woods."

INTERFRATERNITY SING A SUCCESS

Saturday evening at the close of the Sophomore Play, the Junior Week crowd gathered in front of Meade Memorial Chapel to hear the annual interfraternity sing. Each fraternity sang two or three of its favorite songs which resulted in a varied program ranging from songs of brotherhood and loyalty to comic pieces. There is no prize awarded for the best singing, but judging from the amount of applause from the audience, the songs of Alpha Sigma Phi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Delta Upsilon were appreciated most. The songs are always enjoyed by a large number of people and this event has become a traditional part of the Junior Week program.

GRETCHEN TAYLOR '29 WINS PRIZE SPEAKING

Mildred Senecal '28, Second, and Frances Spear '28 Third.

Gretchen Taylor '29, Mildred Senecal '28, Frances Spear '28, Florence Porter '28, and Gwendolyn Thatcher '28 won prizes at the second annual women's prize speaking contest held in Mead Memorial Chapel last Wednesday evening. Eight women competed for the prizes of $50, $35, $25 and $20.

The winning essay by Gretchen Taylor was entitled "After College—What?" Miss Taylor said: "Ultimate leadership is the answer. Then the question comes 'shall we be prepared?' Thus instead of 'After College—What' we have 'During College—Which! To understand a little better the problems that the world , which we are to lead is facing."

Miss Senecal the second prize winner, and winner of the first prize last year, spoke on "Life—an Adventure." Miss Senecal said: "There is an almost universal attitude of boredom and cynicism today and yet the whole world was ready to idolize Lindbergh. One must forget oneself and find joy in life, in everything, push on over what seem to be defeats, be full of enthusiasm and never lack the spirit of adventure."

Miss Spear, winner of the third prize, spoke on "Americanism" as embodied in a cross section of the American civilization of today, taking into consideration the situation of education, government, opportunities for advancement, and the character of the modern American citizen.

Florence Porter, who tied with Gwendolyn Thatcher for fourth place, spoke on the three great values of books. Miss Thatcher in her speech gave the value of debate in women's colleges.

The three other speeches presented that evening were: "The Education of the Vanishing Race" by Janette Lewis; "Bygone Ships of the Sea" by Elizabeth Dyer; and "Peddlers Code" by Helen M. Perry.

CHI PSI DEFEATS BETA KAPPA 9-7

Chi Psi defeated Beta Kappa in the second game of the Interfraternity League series, 9-7. The Chi Psi's displayed much strength with the stick, but were weak in the field. Beta Kappa rallied in the sixth, changing the score from 8-4 to 8-7, but failed to come through with the winning runs, the inning ending with three men stranded on the bags.

Batteries: Chi Psi, Williams '31, and Hinman '28; Beta Kappa, Kelly '31 and G. Davis '30.

Put your pipe on P.A.

WHAT you get out of a pipe depends on what you feed it. Millions of contented jimmy-pipers will tell you that Prince Albert commands a pipe to stand and deliver. You suspect you are in for some grand pipe-sessions the minute you get a whiff of P. A.'s aroma.

The first pipe-load confirms your suspicions. What a smoke, Fellows! Remember when you asked for the last dance and she said "You've had it!"? P. A. is cool, like that. And sweet as knowing that she didn't really mean it.

Sweet and mellow and mild and long-burning.

Put your pipe on P. A. You can hit it up to your heart's content, knowing in advance that P. A. will not bite your tongue or parch your throat. That one quality alone gets P. A. into the best smoke-fraternities. And then think of all its other qualities!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.
